Dear Mr. Tidwell,

A couple years ago my wife and I were hiking up the Bonneville Pass trail in the Dunoir when down the trail came a runaway mule wearing a halter and dragging a picket pin running flat out. Next came a mountain biker going fast downhill. Later came an outfitter asking if we had seen his mule. When all this was going on I thought I am glad I did not have my grandson on a horse when the biker came flying down the trail as a precious child could have been hurt in a horse wreck. Please do not allow Mountain bikers to use the Dunoir. I have seen how mountain biking in the Dunoir is dangerous. There are many other areas to ride bikes, but few real wilderness areas. We must protect America's remaining wilderness.

Best wishes,
